

Combine the two sentences. Use the second sentence as an adjective clause.

1. I met a girl. She can play the piano.
I met a girl who can play the piano.
2. I returned the money. I had borrowed it from my roommate.
3. The students missed the quiz. They were absent from class.
4. That is the woman. Her opinions are always same as her husband's.
5. I am reading a book. It was written by George Orwell.
6. I killed the mosquitos. They bit my son.
7. The women are all from England. We met them last night.
8. Did you hear about the tsunami? It occurred in Aceh?
9. You are sitting at a desk. It is dusty.
10. Rafiah is a student. You borrowed her dictionary.
11. The police are looking for a man. He is an arsonist.
12. The woman stepped on my toe. She was dancing.
13. Mr. Tan is very proud of his son's achievement. His son won the speech contest.
14. The woman stepped on my toe. I was dancing with her.
15. Sam applied for the job. He speaks Japanese.
16. The man is my father. I respect his opinions.
17. I live in a house. It is situated in a valley.
18. The boy is friendly. I am staying at his room.

Answers

2. I returned the money which/that I had borrowed from my roommate.
3. The students who/that were absent from class missed the quiz.
4. That is the woman whose opinions are always same as her husband's.
5. I am reading a book which/that was written by George Orwell.
6. I killed the mosquitos which/that bit my son.
7. The women who/whom/that we met last night are all from England.
8. Did you hear about the tsunami which/that occurred in Aceh?
9. You are sitting at a desk which/that is dusty.
10. Rafiah whose dictionary you borrowed is a student.
11. The police are looking for a man who/that is an arsonist.
12. The woman who/that was dancing stepped on my toe.
13. Mr. Tan whose son won the speech contest is very proud of his son's achievement.
14. The woman who/whom/that I was dancing with stepped on my toe.
15. Sam who/that speaks Japanese applied for the job.
16. The man whose opinions I respect is my father.
17. I live in a house which/that is situated in a valley.
18. The boy whose room I am staying at is friendly.